2019 California Urban Forests Conference:

Connect with municipal arborists, urban forest managers, landscape design professionals, planners, urban wood enthusiasts, and non-profits from across California for this unique educational and networking experience.

Held over two days, September 26 to 28, each full day has a distinct theme that examines current issues related to urban forestry.

Day one; "The Time is Now – Urban Forestry and Climate Change" covers a range of issues including the challenges of the future climate to urban forestry and what urban forestry can do to address the symptoms of climate change.

Day two; "Urban Wood – Growth of an Industry" will feature a series of speakers covering topics related to the recovery and reuse of urban trees at the end of their lives. Sponsors will have the chance to interact with attendees during the main events, but also on our tours and at the evening awards and soiree.

Thank you for your continued support!
